

Savan Group Begins DOJ Directives Modernization

ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA, August 1st, 2011 – Savan Group has been awarded a new task order under their IDIQ contract at the Department of Justice (DOJ) to modernize the Department's Directives Program. Through this task order, Savan Group will advise DOJ in developing a "fully operational, disciplined, and up-to-date Directives Management Program" by developing, among other things, a training program for directives use and helping to overhaul the Department's highest-level directives, the DOJ Orders.

Directives are a critical communication tool for government organizations. Consistently and correctly administering directives promotes effective use of resources and directly reduces the risk of non-compliance with federal and departmental mandates. Savan Group has worked with DOJ on modernizing its directives program for over two years. Past tasks have identified best practices and revised Department directives processes.

Paul DeYoung, an Associate at Savan Group and Project Manager for the directives modernization effort, noted that, "the award of this task order will allow us to see the benefits – to the Department and its people - of our work on directives so far." He added that "the directives project is a great example of what we love to do at Savan Group; identify a problem, plan a comprehensive solution, involve as many of the people who will be touched by the solution as possible, and see the project through to the end."
