

Savan Group to Support HHS OBMT Delegations of Authority Program

ARLINGTON, VIRGINIA, September 22, 2011 – Savan Group has been awarded a new task order with the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services (HHS) to provide a comprehensive review of the efficiency and effectiveness of HHS' Delegations of Authority Program.

Through this task order, Savan Group will help The Office of Business Management and Transformation (OBMT) evaluate the current HHS's delegation of authority structure, create a comprehensive and cross-referenced record of HHS delegations of authority, and present options for how HHS should categorize and organize the Program going forward. "A comprehensive review of HHS' Delegations will benefit the Department through improved administration and decreased risk," said Paul DeYoung, Savan Group's Project Manager at HHS. "Department leaders need immediate access to this information, and HHS needs to be certain that its Delegation files are in compliance with federal statutes. This project will provide a significant benefit."

OBMT is responsible for the HHS' Delegations of Authority Program. Delegations of Authority allow the Secretary of HHS and other officials to convey authorities provided to them by statute, regulation, or executive order to subordinate officials so they may legally carry out the many activities of the Department.

This year, Savan Group has continued to expand its footprint in the federal government with additional contracts at HHS, the U.S. Department of Justice, and the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development. According to Savan Group President Veeral Majmudar a strong foundation of prior experience is central to Savan Group's success: "Savan Group's experience working with all types of policy – directives, regulations, and delegations – at multiple federal clients gives us the qualified practitioners and knowledge makes us uniquely qualified to provide support HHS."
